A database in MySQL is implemented as a directory containing files that correspond to tables in the database. Because there are no tables in a database when it is initially created, the CREATE DATABASE statement creates only a directory under the MySQL data directory. Rules for permissible database names are given in Section 9.2, "Schema Object Names".

Base Is Base a database? Not technically. Database applications often incorporate separate "front-end" and back-end components. Base is no exception. This two-tiered software model provides flexibility and the necessary data-durability. It involves separating the graphical user-interface (GUI front-end) from the core database functionality (database engine back-end).
